

FORGIVENESS

"I can forgive but I cannot forget!" is one of the most common statements made out of grief and anger when deeply hurt. Yet forgiveness is the best balm to heal all wounded and aching hearts. Sinful man has a very poor ability to forgive. He might be able to forgive for small and insignificant hurts. But when it comes to very painful hurts like betrayal or loss of loved ones or freedom and life, it is impossible to forgive.

To be able to forgive in all circumstances in life is the norm expected of all born again believers. This is God's expectation. This ability to forgive originates from God in Christ. It is from heaven, not of this earth. With the God given ability to forgive, all wounds can be healed. All relationships no matter how broken can be stitched together by the threads of divine forgiveness. All bitterness can be driven away from our hearts as far as the east is from the west if we forgive for the sake of Christ. The soul imbued with a peaceful conscience, where the seeds of love and joy are watered by God's heavenly forgiveness and bloom with the fragrance of Christ's salvific work coursing through, enables all believers to rejoice always and in everything give thanks because it is the blessed will of God in Christ Jesus concerning us. This is the experience of many of God's faithful servants as they suffered unimaginable losses for the sake of Christ and God's people and the extension of God's kingdom.

This experience of forgiving all, just as we have been forgiven by God in Christ, ought to be every believer's daily experience in this most unforgiving world.
